The Georgian House Around the World

by Roger Mitchell.

AN ESSEX AREA SPECIAL INTEREST DAY

Wednesday 12th November 2014 Foakes Hall Great Dunmow CM6 1DG

Between 1720 and 1850 one of Britain's most successful exports was the Georgian House. It was elegant and versatile, particularly suitable for hot climates and a wide variety of building materials. British or local architects might provide plans but a carpenter or bricklayer equipped with a pattern book could produce a satisfactory product. In this Day of Special Interest we start in the British Isles and then cross the Atlantic to the American Colonies. Then travel to the far side of the world to the Sandwich Islands and Australasia and then return via South Africa and Menorca.
